Describing your company's culture

Let's learn how to express sympathy to people. Steve Wozniak was a co-founder of Apple Computer, along with Steve Jobs. Watch the video, and answer the questions. https://cns2.ef-cdn.com/Juno/17/96/90/v/179690/MOB\_12.3.1.1.1.mp4

[INTERVIEWER] What are your thoughts about corporate social responsibility, [INTERVIEWER] and what guidance can you give the students as a, as a parting statement?

[WOZNIAC] Yeah. My thoughts would be more on, on the extreme end of ... for social responsibility.

[WOZNIAC] I just grew up with a sense of ethics – very strong sense of it from my dad –

[WOZNIAC] and it was much more important to me in my life, my happiness, than, you know, anything that business ever brought me.

[WOZNIAC] Um, I, I always thought, when I worked at Hewlett-Packard, I was so strongly influenced by the early,

[WOZNIAC] it was a different Hewlett-Packard than today, the Hewlett-Packard values,

[WOZNIAC] and anybody could communicate at any level,

[WOZNIAC] and stockrooms of parts were not locked up from engineers that could use them, even for devices of their own design.

[WOZNIAC] And, and, um, it was like, we, we thought of ourselves as a, as a family,

[WOZNIAC] very much everyone is for everybody else, everybody in here is good,

[WOZNIAC] they're a part of the family.

[WOZNIAC] When there was a horrible, um, uh, recession, Hewlett-Packard had to lay off 10 percent of the people.

[WOZNIAC] Instead of laying them off, everybody took a 10 percent pay cut.

[WOZNIAC] Nobody was fired, put on the street, told, 'You don't have a job to support your family anymore.'

[WOZNIAC] And I really believed in, in that.

[WOZNIAC] So, um, and, and the ethical responsibility in the world.

[WOZNIAC] Like, just, you know, being a caring person for those who don't have is just No. 1 thing for me.

[WOZNIAK] One of the reasons, you know, I, I like teachers so much, and I, I married a teacher, and I am a teacher, and, um.

[WOZNIAK] So, you know, how do you do it?

[WOZNIAK] You know, obviously, you ... the profits are all ... the profits come first, is the way we run our businesses these days.

[WOZNIAK] But boy, when you're working on something, you can just think,

[WOZNIAK] 'Is there any step I could just take a little extra time, that really doesn't show, and motivates me even more about what I'm doing?'

[WOZNIAK] It comes up with a little cleaner approach, maybe uses a little less, less energy, [WOZNIAK] little puts, a little bit less, for at least my project.

[INTERVIEWER] OK.

[WOZNIAK] Um, you know, costs, and it all boils down to, you know, making things for less cost.

[WOZNIAK] But you help the, the world, you know.

[WOZNIAK] And also, um, if once you, once you have this big money machine, earned a lot of money,

[WOZNIAK] a small percentage should, a lot of, you know, some reasonable percentage should really go to the surrounding community.

[WOZNIAK] That's where you came from.

[WOZNIAK] I came from my schools.

[WOZNIAK] I want to give back to my schools.

[WOZNIAK] I came from, you know, various people in my life that were important to me,

[WOZNIAK] and would want to give them back, and so it's good when a company thinks that way and actually does it.

Explaining your company's structure

Now we're going to discuss ways to deal with office politics. Two businesspeople are discussing the structure of their company. Watch the video and study the language. [SICILY] The budgeting plan was quite effective last month.
[JIM] I couldn't agree more. Is there anything left on the agenda?
[SICILY] I think we need to discuss the communication of the company.
[JIM] What do we have in mind
[SICILY] It's apparent the current hierarchy is the problem with communication and needs to be flattened.
[JIM] It goes without saying that we can improve communication, but does that make sense?
[SICILY] Just look at the facts.
[SICILY] You and I both know the company is top-heavy.
[SICILY] So there will be some high-level layoffs.
[JIM] I'm not sure about this. Can you say more?
[SICILY] The existing vertical structure has hampered the communication between lower-level employees and the executive team.
[JIM] Can you talk about how you are planning to reorganize the teams?
[SICILY] Currently, employees work in teams focused on one area.
[SICILY] The new structure has cross-functional teams focused on product development.
[JIM] Can you give us more details about this?
[SICILY] We'll discuss the details next meeting. Wanna go grab lunch?
[JIM] Sure.

The current hierarchy is the problem.    当前层次结构存在问题。
needs to be flattened    需要把它压平
The company is top-heavy.    公司有些头重脚轻。
The existing vertical structure ...    现行的垂直结构...
planning to reorganize the teams    计划重组团队
The new structure has ...    新的结构有
cross-functional teams focused on    跨职能团队专注于

公司位置
全球性公司的框架可能是复杂的。他们公司的某些部分可能在世界各地的不同地方。
Our headquarters are in London, but we have large branch offices in Hong Kong and New York.	我们的总部在伦敦，但是在香港和纽约我们有大型的分支办公室。
Our main factory is located in Seoul.	我们主要的工厂位于首尔。
内部框架
一个公司的内部框架可能包括不同的管理层面。
My company has a vertical structure. Communication comes from the top and moves downward. It's rather rigid, if you ask me.	我们公司使用垂直框架。沟通从上向下移动。如果你问我的话，它很死板。
I'm in a company that's organized horizontally. I work with a team to make decisions.	我在一个水平组织的公司。我和一个团队一起做决定。
We're restructuring our company so teams will be cross-functional. Designers, developers and production will be on the same team.	我们正在重组我们的公司以便团队具有交叉功能。设计师，开发者和生产部都在同一个团队。
The company is top-heavy. There are just too many executives.	公司头重脚轻。有太多的高层。
We're going to flatten our company's structure because there are too many levels in the hierarchy.	我们要扁平化我们公司的结构因为在等级制度中有太多的层次。

Read the text, and answer the questions.

A company's structure has a strong influence on how things are done. Companies spend a lot of time talking about their organizations, especially whether to use a vertical or horizontal structure. Each has its advantages and disadvantages. Vertical structures are common in traditional companies. Executives have the power to make decisions, so projects can often move quickly. Employees are clear about their responsibilities. However, these companies sometimes lack open communication, so good ideas can be lost. Employees have few opportunities to work with people outside their teams, so they may not be able to develop new skills. In horizontal structures, it's common to have cross-functional teams. Employees work with people who have different skills, so they learn new things. They are part of the decision-making process, so they feel more valued. In addition, because more people contribute ideas to a project, the quality may improve. However, in horizontal organizations, there are more discussions, so decisions take longer. When traditional, top-heavy companies restructure to have a horizontal structure, it may cause some stress. Some executives may be laid off to flatten the hierarchy. Deciding on a company structure is not an easy task.

My thought is to encourage expansion by creating a richer corporate culture.	我的想法是通过建设更加丰富的公司文化来推动扩展。
We could maybe even have a forum.	也许我们甚至还可以举办一次讨论会。
What if we carry out an analysis?	要是我们开展一次分析会怎么样？
I'd like to analyze the internal and external threats first.	我想先分析一下受到的内部和外部威胁。

你可以使用含有 propose 和 suggest 的表达来提出建议。
I propose that, just one day a week, we don't have any meetings.	我提议，每周空出一天不开会。
What I'm proposing is that we incorporate employee feedback.	我建议我们应该采纳员工的反馈。
I say we use instant messaging more often – just a suggestion.	我认为我们多多使用即时讯息，只是提议一下。

[MAN] Well, first thing you have to do is communication. That's the most important thing – communicating with your employees or your colleagues. Uh, I mean, different ideas. You know, you want to always look for a better idea. Uh, and ...

[MAN] Employees.

[WOMAN] ... employees ... to listen to their ideas, because a lot of times younger people have, don't think ... they think in a different way. So it's good to listen and say, 'Oh, well, you know, maybe we can incorporate something like that.'

[WOMAN] Um, I think, um, having some kind of a system where they're ... where they have goals, you know, set goals, each one to set the goals. I think it's good to, for people to work together to do goals.

[WOMAN] Sometimes when you have people that just work good on their own, they need to be encouraged to work with others, so you put them together with somebody to accomplish a specific task.

[WOMAN] Uh, we've had a family business and, um, I think it was successful because everybody ... each person was good at a certain thing, and they were allowed to excel in that area. So ...

[MAN] In order to get a good, effective team.

[WOMAN] Yeah. So communicate ...

[MAN] It's like a baseball team or a football team, you know. Each individual has his job. Without teamwork, it's not gonna work.

[WOMAN] Yeah. Yeah, you have to have principles. You have to have a mission statement. I think that, you know, and everybody should know what they are and should make a commitment to follow those, uh, basic principles.

Erin Medina Tips for Success at Work Seven Tips to Build an Effective Team

You probably either lead a team or work on a team, but do you know how to build an effective team? Too often, a team is weak and a project fails because each individual thinks only about himself or herself. If you build an effective team instead of working individually, more innovative, satisfying results can be achieved. Here are seven tips for building an effective team: Select a Good Leader Choose someone who is an impressive manager and an excellent communicator, as well as someone who has strong skills appropriate to the project. Just Say 'Yes!' to the Project Discuss the project together as a team. Allow the team to brainstorm and ask questions. Try to incorporate their ideas into the project, and then ask team members to sign a contract saying they are committed to the success of the project. Make Goals Clear Write them down. Email them. Post them on the wall. Text, blog and talk about them through out the project. Establish a contest, and reward people for showing how they've achieved a task.

Promote Skills Each project has many different tasks; each team member has a different and unique set of skills. Discover what each team member can do, assigning them to the appropriate task. Together, you'll have a full skill set that can be used to expertly complete every task on the project. Work Together Although each person has unique skills, everyone should cooperate on the project. Encourage people to work with one another, instead of solely on their own, by pairing them and requiring that they accomplish a specific task together. Team work pays off! Communicate Did I mention team members should talk to one another? As the project continues, discuss what's already been accomplished. Describe problems you're experiencing and how to solve them; you can always find a better idea, a better way of doing things. Use project management software to keep everyone informed. Work Hard, Play Hard Find ways after work to socialize, such as eating dinner together or a week away for team-building activities and games. Socializing helps team members get to know one another better so they can anticipate everyone's actions and needs on the project. Put these seven top tips into practice, and you'll find your team is functioning more effectively and working together more happily. Good luck!

[ENTREPRENEUR] Here's my advice to you for how to succeed at office politics without becoming a backstabber:

[ENTREPRENEUR] Don't keep your head in the sand.

[ENTREPRENEUR] Office politics is a reality, and it's better to participate than to pretend it doesn't exist.

[ENTREPRENEUR] Also, get to know your coworkers.

[ENTREPRENEUR] If you seek to understand your coworkers, you may avoid potential disagreements.

[ENTREPRENEUR] Top managers know that the key to management is being a good listener

[ENTREPRENEUR] and taking the time to understand the needs of the people around them.

[ENTREPRENEUR] No matter how much you don't like someone, don't let your anger or annoyance show.

[ENTREPRENEUR] Don't humiliate them, attack them or insult them.

[ENTREPRENEUR] What goes around comes around.

[ENTREPRENEUR] Your personal attack may seem justified,

[ENTREPRENEUR] And the choice you make now could have important repercussions later.

I agree with Doris that you have to be tough and play the game. But there are different ways to play the game. It all boils down to having good relationships with higher-ups and coworkers. You have to be honest in your comments, but you should be careful about expressing annoyance. Find a mentor if you can. I agree that participating in team activities will make you feel more part of the group.
