[JAKE] Oh, man. This is gonna be awesome.
[SIMON] Burgers taste so much better when they've been barbecued.
[JAKE] Yup. That's a fact.
[SIMON] I'll get it.
[HELEN] Simon Price?
[SIMON] Uh, yeah. And you are?
[HELEN] My name's Helen Banks. I'm the new apartment manager.
[SIMON] Oh, hi! Uh, is there a problem?
[HELEN] Yes, I'm afraid there is. Can I come in?
[HELEN] It's been brought to my attention that you're having a barbecue.
[HELEN] Did you not get our email with the new apartment regulations?
[SIMON] Uh, no. Don't think I saw that one.
[HELEN] Well, you should read these emails in the future. There's now a regulation against cooking on the balconies.
[JAKE] Seriously?
[HELEN] Yes. It's just not allowed. Actually, it's a city law now, also. It's because of safety concerns.
[SIMON] I see.
[SIMON] Uh, is there any way that we can just finish our barbecue today, and then ...
[HELEN] I'm sorry. I'd really like to help you, but it's prohibited. There's actually a $200 fine.
[SIMON] Okay. I understand. My roommate and I will put the barbecue out right away.
[HELEN] Thank you. You know, sometimes rules are there to keep people safe. You can't just go starting fires anywhere you want.
[SIMON] Yes, yes, I understand. We will put the barbecue out right away. Thank you for your time.
[JAKE] Ohh! My burgers!

Health and safety at work No place is completely safe, and that includes the workplace. Here are a few things you can do at work to stay safe and healthy. * Don't go to work sick. If a colleague is sick at work, avoid contact with them. Perhaps you can even ask them to go home. * In case of fire, know where the fire extinguishers are and how to use them. Also, know where the emergency exits are, and how to safely evacuate the building. * Make sure there are first-aid kits in the workplace. If someone is injured, they might need immediate care. * Use ergonomic equipment. This can help avoid injuries from typing or sitting too long. * If something at work makes you feel unsafe or unhealthy, report it to your manager.

[SIMON] What is it?

[JAKE] More rules.

[SIMON] Dear tenant: Please pay attention to the following new rules and regulations. Due to health and safety concerns, the swimming pool will now close at 8 p.m.

[SIMON] Furthermore, a new parking system is being introduced. A one-month permit costs $50 and can be bought from the apartment management office in Block D.

[SIMON] Fifty dollars a month. For parking. That's outrageous!

[JAKE] I know! I'm sick and tired of the number of rules in this place! And everywhere!

[JAKE] When I managed the coffee shop, a health inspector came to check everything.

[JAKE] She gave us a score from 1 to 10. And I always knew that if our score was below 9, I'd lose my job.

[JAKE] It's a waste of time and energy. I've had it up to here. And this stupid lamp! I hate it!

[SIMON] Whoa, Jake! Take it easy. Not all rules are stupid. Some are necessary. They're there to protect us.

[JAKE] Yeah. I know. It's just that, in my new job, there's a procedure for everything.

[JAKE] My mentor's always correcting me, and I'm fed up with it. Also, she's observing my class on Monday, and I'm nervous.

[SIMON] I'm sure you'll do fine.

Rules, rules, rules From: dan.heath@downtowncoffee.com To: healthandsafety@govmt.org Dear Health Inspector, I just read your report on our coffee shop. I think it's outrageous. You must only have spent maybe 30 minutes observing us, and then you compile a terrible report. A score of six? Really? I'll probably lose my job for this, you know. You even claimed one of my employees, Karen, was using dirty cups. Untrue! She's a new employee. I am her mentor, I observe everything she does, and she does NOT use dirty cups. Furthermore, you stated that we do nothing to protect the customers from coffee that's too hot. We always ask our customers how hot they want their coffee. I really don't understand why you were so critical. I demand a review. Our coffee shop is not a six. Our coffee shop is a 10! And we have hundreds of happy customers who would agree with that. New regulations have been announced by the government.	新规定已经被政府宣布。
The report has been compiled by a safety expert.	这份报告是由一名安全专家编写的。
A decision has been made by the local council.	一项决定已在当地议会做出。
记住，我们通常在动作的宾语比主动者（换言之，实施该动作的人或事物）更重要时使用被动语态。实际上，主动者有时可以完全省略。
New regulations have been announced.	新规定已经被宣布。
The report has been compiled.	报告已编写完成。
A decision has been made.	决定已经做出。

[SIMON] What is it?

[JAKE] More rules.

[SIMON] Dear tenant: Please pay attention to the following new rules and regulations. Due to health and safety concerns, the swimming pool will now close at 8 p.m.

[SIMON] Furthermore, a new parking system is being introduced. A one-month permit costs $50 and can be bought from the apartment management office in Block D.

[SIMON] Fifty dollars a month? For parking? That's outrageous!

[JAKE] I know! I'm sick and tired of the number of rules in this place! And everywhere!

[JAKE] When I managed the coffee shop, a health inspector came to check everything.

[JAKE] She gave us a score from 1 to 10. And I always knew that if our score was below 9, I'd lose my job.

[JAKE] It's a waste of time and energy. I've had it up to here. And this stupid lamp! I hate it!

[SIMON] Whoa, Jake! Take it easy. Not all rules are stupid. Some are necessary. They're there to protect us.

[JAKE] Yeah. I know. It's just that, in my new job, there's a procedure for everything.

[JAKE] My mentor's always correcting me, and I'm fed up with it. Also, she's observing my class on Monday, and I'm nervous.

[SIMON] I'm sure you'll do fine.

[JAKE] Yeah. I guess I just had to let off some steam.

[SIMON] Do you really hate the lamp?

[JAKE] The lamp's, uh, okay, I guess.

That's outrageous! 太离谱了!

I'm sick and tired of ... 我真是烦透了.....

It's a waste of time and energy. 完全是浪费时间和精力。

I've had it up to here. 我忍无可忍了。

My mentor's always correcting me. 我的导师总是在纠正我。

I'm fed up with it. 我受够了。

I just had to let off some steam. 我必须发泄一下。

BILL: What's the matter, Patsy?

PATSY: Oh. Hey, Bill. Well, it's just the boss is always correcting me. No matter what I do. I'm (sick and tired of it) .

BILL: I know what you mean. The rules and regulations change so often, I'm totally confused.

PATSY: So, I worked late last night to finish a project. I think I left here around 8:15. Then, this morning, the boss tells me I broke an office rule by working after 8!

BILL: (That's outrageous) ! You were finishing a project!

PATSY: I know! I am (so fed up with) this place.

BILL: Me, too. I've (had it up to here) .

PATSY: Hey, all this complaining is a (waste of time) and energy. It's Friday. Let's leave a bit early. Go (let off some steam) .

BILL: I hear you! I know a great place just down the street.

PATSY: So let's go!

BILL: Uh, what time is it?

PATSY: Five fifty-five.

BILL: Well, at least you won't get in trouble for leaving too late tonight.

Australia has some of the strictest laws in the world regarding the use of cellphones while driving. It is prohibited to talk, text, play games, or take photos or videos. In general, you can't use your phone at all while driving. It's also illegal to use your phone when the car is stopped, unless you are in a parking space. What that means is, for example, you can't use your phone at a red light. Drivers who break these laws have to pay an expensive fine, and they also have to pay more for their car insurance.
